197-71 catalog cover

Joyce Ogden, who was a librarian here from 1959-1996, sent the archivist an article recently that she'd run across. In light of the many challenges in higher education today, it is interesting to read about how an earlier generation of college educators, including here at Brockport, which is mentioned in the attached Summer 1971 Saturday Evening Post article, rose to the occasion in their day. Also in the attachment is part of the catalog description of the innovative Brockport program mentioned in Hayakawa's article.

The College at Brockport’s Department of Dance will present DANCE/Strasser featuring choreography by undergraduate and graduate students in the College’s nationally renowned dance program.

Performances take place Thursday, Dec. 1, through Saturday, Dec. 3, 2016, at 7:30 pm in the Rose L. Strasser Studio in Hartwell Hall, Kenyon Street, on the Brockport campus. Tickets are $17/General, $12/Senior Citizens, Brockport Alumni, Faculty and Staff, and $9/Students. Featuring new dance works by five undergraduate dance majors and four graduate students, concertgoers can look forward to a diverse and energetic dance experience ranging from the delicate and emotional to the quirky.

Highlights in this concert include Chiquita Limer’s MFA thesis “I-ce Shadow” (“I see shadow”), a play in the relationship between figure skating, modern dance, music, and video projection, aiming to investigate the figure skater’s movement aesthetic transposed and integrated upon the bodies of modern dancers.

Also on the program is the rhythmically exciting “A Clock Chaos,” choreographed by graduate student Jiali Wang, showcasing the physical embodiment of the musical score, “In C,” composed and performed by Terry Riley. Additionally, the audience will experience an intriguing duet choreographed by undergraduate Emilia Bunich, titled “Link, Sink, Sync” and a dynamic and inspiring performance of Will Dillard-Jackson’s “Mourner’s Gathering,” danced by 10 undergraduate students.
