Help digitize history!

Preserve the treasure trove of Writers Forum author interviews by sponsoring the digitization of one or more sessions.

Support the important and urgent mission of digitizing the videos of Writers Forum authors who’ve graced the Brockport campus over the past 50 years.

Interviews prior to 2006 — about 360 of them — are all in outmoded forms of storage. Our goal is to restore them as quickly as possible, beginning with the oldest and/or most fragile, in order to provide everyone everywhere indefinite access to our renowned visiting author series through the Drake Library Digital Commons.

Thank you for helping to preserve our history!
SUNY Webinar on Open Access Policies – Thursday, July 12, 2 pm

This spring, the SUNY Board of Trustees approved a resolution encouraging campus adoption of open access policies. A webinar related to policy implementation is scheduled for Thursday, July 12.

Open Access

Drake Library will host viewing of an informational webinar related to the new SUNY Board of Trustees Open Access Policy on Tuesday, July 12, in Room 55A from 2–3 pm. The webinar can be watched in the library or at your desk and will be recorded.

Brockport is among the first SUNY campuses to adopt an open access policy for journal articles. See links below or contact morzech@brockport.edu or kmyers@brockport.edu for more information.

MEMORANDUM

From: Carey Hatch, Interim Sr. Associate Provost for Academic Services

Subject: Campus Open Access Policies

Our thanks to all who participated in the April 24 webinar on the open access policy adopted by the SUNY Trustees (available on the SUNY Open Access website (see link below) in March.

We had a good conversation about next steps required of both System and campuses as we move toward the collaborative development of campus-specific open access policies and the development by System of related resources. Two priorities emerged from the discussion: 1) that System would develop a sample project plan to serve as a resource guide for campuses in their work; and, 2) the need for additional professional development on open access generally and policy requirements.

Andie Graham, Environmental Science & Ecology, receives $249,980 in grant funding from New York State Department of Environmental Conservation

Andie Graham receives a $249,980 grant from New York State Department of Environmental Conservation to continue her work with the highly invasive grass, slender false-brome.

The Department of Environmental Science and Ecology’s Andie Graham has received funding from NYS Department of Environmental Conservation to continue her work with the highly invasive grass, slender false-brome (Brachypodium sylvaticum), in Western and Central New York. The grant will support two full-time graduate students, advised by Dr. Kathryn Amatangelo, as well as one part-time graduate student and several undergraduate students advised by Ms. Graham. The goals of the project include detecting and mapping new populations of B. sylvaticum, researching environmental factors that contribute to the spread and distribution of B. sylvaticum, and employing control techniques to remove this invasive grass from infested areas. The grant will be administered by The Research Foundation for SUNY, The College at Brockport
