Craig Ross receives SUNY Residence Life and Housing Administrator's Mid-Level Professional Award

Craig Ross, Associate Director of Residential Life/Learning Communities, receives SUNY Residence Life and Housing Administrators Mid-Level Professional Award.

Craig's contributions and accomplishments are evidenced by his achievements in the areas of budget, facilities management, and operations.

Craig strategically manages our DIFR budget to enhance the student experience on campus, while collaborating with various other departments who support our residential program. Craig also takes lead on capital planning and long/short-term project planning.

In addition to budget and facilities improvements, Craig finds time to mentor students. For example, Craig serves as the advisor of the Caribbean Student Association and has multiple student interns, one of whom programmed our Amazon Alexas to have Brockport-specific codes and information. The Amazon project is one example of how Craig developed and executed an innovative idea that will help our students more easily access information about the College and improve quality of life for our residents.
Craig’s innovation and ability to execute, along with his student-centeredness, have contributed to our College and serve as innovative strategies for our field of residence life and housing. Craig’s outstanding commitment to our profession is demonstrated by his innovation and leadership to physically improve our campus and services within residence life.

One of our peers

One of our peer institutions, in Wyoming County.

Middlebury Academy
Recently while at the "Appleumpkin" festival in the village of Wyoming, south of Brockport, the archivist had the chance to tour the old Middlebury Academy building, which is today the home of the local historical society. Located on Route 19 in Wyoming, this was a peer school to our predecessor the Brockport Collegiate Institute. They both were part of the wide spread "academy" movement of the pre-Civil War years. These schools had elements of a modern high school, prep school and college, but truly were something unique all their own.

Like Brockport, the academy in Wyoming was initiated and supported by local people desiring better educational opportunities for their community. The man who settled the village, Silas Newell, led the drive to establish the academy, and he was the one who actually built the brick building for it in 1817, which still stands today two centuries later. The academy followed the typical trajectory of such institutions, being successful in its earlier years, then in the post Civil War era as public schooling expanded and other options more available, the academy closed and the building was used for local public schooling until 1912. The building is only open on Sundays, Memorial Day through September, but one could always park and walk up the hill to see it from the outside.

Brockport’s Undergraduate Research and Internship Day filled the Union Ballroom!

Undergraduate Research and Internship Day receives great turnout and positive feedback from students, faculty, and staff.

Through the combined efforts of the Summer Undergraduate Research Committee and the Academic Internship Committee, Undergraduate Research and Internship Day on September 28 gave Brockport students the chance to hear from their peers and recent alumni about the importance and significance of experiential learning opportunities. The event’s poster session contained nearly fifty student and alumni posters, allowing these individuals to showcase their independent research projects and multidisciplinary internship experiences.

Additionally, book ending the event were well-attended presentations by Brockport alumni Clayton Brady and Agathi Georgiou, who spoke and answered student questions about their personal experiences with research, internships, and how they best used their time at Brockport to support their future endeavors.

Students who were surveyed expressed greater interest and intent regarding pursuing their own research projects and participating in an internship during their time at Brockport.

Many thanks to all of our student and alumni participants, our guest speakers Clayton Brady and Agathi Georgiou, and all Brockport faculty and staff that took the time to attend.

The Reality Tour

The Rochester Social Welfare Action Alliance (SWAA) is currently in its 17th year of providing Reality Tours. Many of the organizers are Brockport Social Work faculty, interns, and alumni.

Get on the Bus! Reality Tour is October 20th

The Reality Tour is a community education tool that makes poverty in Rochester visible to a wide range of community members. The project is a result of collaboration between social work students, human service workers, community-based agencies, local poor people’s organizations, and individuals living in poverty. The Tours take participants to key locations which symbolize the funding priorities of local, state, and federal governments, and visit locations such as county social service offices, shelters, and sub-standard schools. The tour ‘guides’ include human service workers, welfare rights activists, county welfare workers, and people who are poor.

The Reality Tour explores the impact of local, state and federal welfare policies, and common myths about welfare reform are explored. It also help participants “connect the dots” between issues such as unemployment, street violence and drug addiction, low wage work and the need for homeless shelters, and lack of health insurance and poverty. The Reality Tour focuses on community education as an advocacy strategy. Registration is open until October 17.

Student Teaching Candidates participate in a professional development workshop offered by Mr. Christopher Albrecht, the 2018 New York State Teacher of the Year

Student teaching candidates in the Childhood/Adolescence Inclusive Education Programs participated in a workshop on professional portfolios and job interviews offered by Mr. Christopher Albrecht, the 2018 New York State Teacher of the Year.
Mr. Christopher Albrecht, the 2018 New York State Teacher of the Year and a 4th grade teacher at Hill Elementary School Brockport Central School District (BCSD), opened his classroom and offered a workshop on professional portfolios and job interviews to the student teaching candidates in the Childhood/Adolescence Inclusive Education Programs. This was the sixth time for Mr. Albrecht to offer the workshop to Brockport student teaching candidates, starting in Spring 2016.

Amazing stories about his teaching journey were also shared by Mr. Albrecht at TEDxRochester via the link below.

Mr. Albrecht and many colleagues at BCSD work together with faculty and staff members in the Department of Education and Human Development to facilitate professional development for teacher candidates and to strengthen the partnership between BCSD and the College.

Sociology students, a recent alumna, and faculty presented at the New York State Sociological Association conference

Sociology majors Paul Roger '19 and Alysha Rios '20; recent alumna Kalani Morris '18; and faculty members Paul Durlak, Kyle Green, and Amy Guptill presented at the annual NYSSA conference Oct 12 and 13 at Nazareth College.

Students, a recent alumna, and three faculty members recently presented at the annual meeting of the New York State Sociological Association held at Nazareth College, October 12 and 13, 2019.

Student Paul Roger '19 presented his sole-authored paper "The Hyper-Criminalization of Space: An Investigation of 'Drug Free Zone' Laws Using GIS." Paul is mentored by Drs. Amy Guptill and Elliot Weininger.

Paul Roger '19, Alysha Rios '20, and Kalani Morris '18 presented their work, co-authored with student Deanna Hutchison '19 and alumnus Fred Brown '18, entitled "Intersectional Identity and Academic Engagement: A Focus-Group Study." They conducted the study as students enrolled in SOC 414 Advanced Research Methods in spring 2018, taught by Dr. Amy Guptill.

Additionally, three sociology faculty presented papers at the conference:

Instructor Dr. Paul Durlak presented "Law and the De/Medicalization of Disability."

Assistant Professor Dr. Kyle Green presented on new work examining the potential of the NBA as a progressive space, given that sport-spaces are considered "apolitical" and 'sacred' in American Society.

Associate Professor Dr. Amy Guptill presented "The Ketchup Trail in Northwest New York in the Early 20th Century."

International Pronouns Day 2018

In honor and recognition of the many cultures represented throughout the College, the Office of Diversity would like to highlight that today, Wednesday, October 17, is the inaugural observance of International Pronouns Day.

International Pronouns Day seeks to make asking, sharing, and respecting personal pronouns commonplace. Pronouns are used in everyday speech and writing to take the place of people's names. We frequently use them without thinking about it.

Mistaking or assuming peoples' pronouns without asking first mistakes their gender and can send an unintended harmful message. Using someone's correct gender pronouns is one of the most basic ways to show your respect for their identity — demonstrating your support and commitment to making Brockport a great college at which to learn and work.

Recognizing the impact of our words, we ask for your continued support and increased awareness in honoring the personal pronouns of all college community members.

Digital Preservation

Some tips and tricks...

This is a bit outside the usual archives fare of stories about our past, but part of archives work is preserving what we have for the future, and increasingly information is digital, not physical. You can't just put the document in a folder in a drawer and retrieve it years later; digital material needs a more active, deliberate approach.

A good starting point to learn more is on the "POWRR" site. This is a library based group from the Midwest that not only have a very informative and helpful website, but they also run a number of workshops and have done some in this area. With this post is a link to their "Digital Preservation 101" page.
A Treasure Trove of Art Housed at The College at Brockport

New Exhibition Highlights Works in the College’s Permanent Art Collection

"Mary" by Stephanie Cusenz

According to gallery director Tim Massey, though modest in size, the permanent collection of the Gallery at the Tower Fine Arts Center houses fine examples of works by notable regional and national artists, as well as former faculty and alumni of the Department of Art, all in a wide range of media. Some of these works will be displayed in Selections from the Permanent Collection, a free exhibition at the Gallery which runs from October 23 – November 18, 2018. A reception celebrating the exhibition will be held as part of one of the College’s First Friday social hours, on Friday, November 2, at 4 pm.

Käthe Kollwitz’ etching, “Praying Girl,” is one of the oldest pieces in the collection, dating to 1892. Kollwitz, who has several European museums and galleries dedicated to her work, was a German artist who was drawn to the plight of peasants and inspired by a drama recounting the Silesian weavers’ revolution, and rendered them in expressionistic fashion. Later in life, she became enamored in communism, much to the Gestapo’s wrath, and they made her last few years quite difficult. She died three months before the end of World War II.

“Organic Structure,” Jack Wolsky’s piece, takes its inspiration from the Erie Canal. This is not surprising, given the fact that Wolsky is a professor emeritus at the College, and taught for several years in a building that straddled the Canal. His works can be found in museums throughout the Northeast, as well as in many private collections. Earlier this year, Wolsky was presented with the Albert Nelson Marquis Lifetime Achievement Award by Marquis Who’s Who.

Rounding out the exhibition will be at least one selection from E.E. Cummings. Often regarded as one of the most significant American poets of the 20th century, Cummings’ talents with a paintbrush are less well known. The College is the repository of 72 Cummings paintings donated to Brockport in the 1970s by James Sibley Watson Jr., a Harvard classmate of Cummings’ and a publisher of his early poetry. The paintings had been stored in a closet and were rediscovered three decades later, many in need of restoration. The noteworthy collection and restoration project caught the attention of The Poetry Foundation, NPR, and The Wall Street Journal, among others. The collection is named in honor of Watson’s late wife.

Others included in the show are Stephanie Cusenz ’05, Saul Steinberg, and Hugo Fisher.

Communication Faculty Member Publishes Essay

Dr. Matthew Althouse publishes an article about the Alt-Right and the Southern Baptist Convention in a special issue of Journal of Communication and Religion.

Dr. Matthew T. Althouse recently published an article in Journal of Communication and Religion. Co-authored with Emeritus Professor Floyd D. Anderson, “The Southern Baptist Convention’s Resolution on the Alternative Right: Making Progress on the Upward / Downward Way” explores how America’s largest protestant denomination initially failed to condemn the Alt-Right at its 2017 meeting. The SBC eventually approved a resolution, but only after the organization faced wide-spread accusations of bigotry. In this article, Althouse and Anderson suggest how redress for racism may be fostered by public disagreements and collective expressions of suffering.

The article may be viewed by clicking the link below and on the relevant hypertext.

Where in the World are Brockport Students? Meet Jonathan Dean!

Did you know Brockport students are studying abroad in all corners of the world right now? See what exciting things one of these students has to say about their Education Abroad experience!

Jonathan Dean

Jonathan Dean is a student in the Department of History and studying at Universidad Internacional this semester, choosing to further develop his Spanish skills in Cuernavaca, Mexico.

Jonathan says, "My experience here in Mexico has been life changing. I had no idea what I would learn in and out of the classroom. Studying abroad in Cuernavaca has been the most important decision of my life thus far. For all those considering studying here; I implore you to follow your heart to Mexico."

Thanks for sharing your experience, Jonathan!
