You are invited to attend the New York Digital Humanities Symposium, a day-long symposium at the University at Buffalo on Saturday, December 1. This is a free event.

NY Digital Humanities Symposium

The day's schedule features morning workshops on Digital Humanities (DH) topics like data visualization, textual analysis and digital editing. In the afternoon, attendees are invited to present their work in lightning talks. Jeffrey Spies will deliver the keynote address on digital humanities collaboration and contribute to an open forum on how to organize an effective NY Digital Humanities working group.

We hope our efforts at this conference produce a group of academics interested in DH to spearhead coalition forming and network building within and beyond our institutions to promote DH research and teaching. The goal is to create a group that is not limited by membership in any particular institution and to welcome scholars who live/teach/research within the New York state region and have interests in DH. Register at nydh.org by November 21.

DANSCORE Includes Choreography by Three New York City-based Guest Artists

Amongst other highlights, Britt Falcon, an alumna of the College’s Department of Dance, and artistic director of Falcon Dance, created “Beauty Happening” on students during her 10-day residency at Brockport Summer Dance.

DANSCORE will be presented on Thursday, November 15 through Saturday, November 17, at the Hartwell Dance Theater in Hartwell Hall on the Brockport campus. All performances begin at 7:30 pm.

The Department of Dance at The College at Brockport presents performances of DANSCORE on Thursday, November 15, through Saturday, November 17, 2018, at the Hartwell Dance Theater in Hartwell Hall on the Brockport campus. All performances begin at 7:30 pm. Ticket prices for all performances are $17/General, $12/Seniors, College at Brockport Alumni, Faculty and Staff, and $9/Students.

The department is making an effort to meet demand from the community to see their often sold-out dance concerts. They have instituted Community Previews, for which there will be 100 tickets available for $5 each (by the usual means) for many of their performances. The Hartwell preview will take place on Wednesday, November 14, at 7:30 pm. These showings will not qualify for required student attendance.

The evening includes work by three New York City-based artists. “Strict Love,” by internationally acclaimed choreographer Doug Varone, has been restaged on Brockport students by former Varone company member and current dance faculty member Julia Burrer. Emily Schoen, former dancer with Keigwin + Company, has created a new dance entitled “It Comes Back to One.” Britt Falcon, an alumna of the Brockport Department of Dance, and artistic director of Falcon Dance, created “Beauty Happening” on students during her residency at Brockport Summer Dance and will also premiere a new solo. Other choreographers include full-time faculty members James Hansen, Mariah Maloney, and Darwin Prioleau. Hansen will be restaging “Revival” on three alumni who are professional dancers in Rochester while Maloney and Prioleau will be premiering exciting new dances created in the fall of 2018.

Artistic director James Hansen remarked: “As we celebrate 50 years of the Department of Dance at The College at Brockport, it’s a special privilege to include alumni in DANSCORE, and to highlight our significant New York City connections through internationally recognized guest artists. Brockport continues to present the best modern dance in upstate New York.”

Jake Evanek visiting Giants Causeway in Northern Ireland

Jake Evanek is a student in the Department of History and studying at Maynooth University this semester, Ireland's fastest growing university.

Jake says, "Being abroad in Ireland has developed me at an incredible pace as a young man since I've been here. It has been exciting and a lot of fun. Ireland is beautiful and I couldn't say enough good things about it. It was a challenging acclimation at first, but since the first part of the semester, I've made this place really feel like another home to me. To sum it up, my time in Ireland has been excellent."

Thanks for sharing your experience, Jake!

Clara Stratameyer
A prominent Brockport educator of an earlier era is still remembered.
Clara Stratemeyer, 1937 Saga

Just yesterday, the archives got an email asking about Clara Stratemeyer, who was here from 1936 to 1946. She had been the president of the Association of Teacher Educators in 1938, and with the association celebrating its centennial this year, they are looking for information on educators like her who were leaders in their field.

Her time at Brockport covered the substantial transition we made from being a Normal School to being a Teachers College. This meant going from a three-year program which finished with not a bachelor's degree, but a teaching license, to a four-year program with bachelor's degree.

When she came here, she was working on her PhD, which she received in 1942 from Columbia University. This was a distinction in an era when many Teachers College faculty did not have a PhD, and it was not essential as a terminal degree. She was active in many educational groups beyond the one who contacted us. Along with several other Brockport educators of that day, she was a founding member of the Eta Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma, an educators society.

She was an active researcher, too, in an era when the weight of expectation for faculty fell on teaching more than scholarship. She had traveled extensively in France and particularly Germany in the late 1920s and early 1930s, researching their teacher training programs.

Clara Stratemeyer was also active in many ways beyond her role as what would be an education professor nowadays. She was instrumental in helping students at Brockport establish the Newman Club, for example.

Did you know Brockport students are studying abroad in all corners of the world right now? See what exciting things one student has to say about their experience abroad!

Adna Tutundzic

Adna is a student in the Department of Political Science and International Studies and interning with Global Arena Research Institute (GARI), a non-profit organization focusing on promoting the dialogue between social sciences, politics, and technology in Prague, Czech Republic.

Adna says, “My decision to study abroad in Prague has by far been the best choice that I have made throughout my college career. In the past month that I have spent abroad, I have learned so much about not only the world around me but also myself. I have learned how to be more fearless, especially in trying new things and meeting new people. Being completely immersed in a foreign culture, in a country where English is not the first language, was challenging at first, but ultimately, extremely rewarding. It has left me feeling as though I can conquer anything that life throws at me.”

Thanks for sharing your experience, Adna!

The American Soldier in World War II is a crowdsourced transcription project that is part of a collaborative effort between Virginia Tech, the National Archives, and Zooniverse, with funding from NEH.

Brockport students contributed 200 commentaries in 2 and a half hours.

You can also participate on your own at any time. See the links below if you’d like to take part in this ongoing crowdsourcing project.

Art Majors Show Their Works Beginning November 27

BFA candidates exhibit their thesis pieces in sculpture and drawing; opening reception to be held November 29, from 5 - 7 pm.

One of the works by Brittany Jordan that will be featured in this fall’s BFA Thesis Exhibition, beginning November 27.

According to gallery director Tim Massey, the next exhibition at the Tower Fine Arts Center Gallery “celebrates the accomplishments of our graduating BFA students.” The fall BFA Thesis Exhibition, will be on display at the Gallery, 180 Holley Street, Brockport, from November 27 – December 9, 2018. The show is free and open to the public. An openign reception will be held on Thursday, November 29, from 5 to 7 pm.

The exhibition will feature the creative output of three talented artists: Brittany Johnson, sculpture; Brittany Jordan, drawing; and Nick Viele, sculpture.

Viele is one of the College’s adult transfer students, having put his college career on hold while caring for his mother, who had developed cancer. In addition to the sculpture that he will be exhibiting, Viele is an “artist about town,” of sorts: Some frequent visitors to the College may be familiar with his “arting up” various parking meters on the campus. One of the dearest to him is his “awareness” meter. Since his mother’s passing, Viele feels that “even though we may have had loved ones fall to an illness doesn’t mean they aren’t our warriors. I wanted to give something beautiful back... If this meter provides just five minutes of peace to the person enjoying it, I’ve done my job. Every color on the meter represents a different cause, so if there’s a certain color you see—you guessed it!—I wanted awareness for that. I also included autism awareness; this one is especially important to me, since my son is on the autism spectrum.”

Jordan’s artwork has focused on the concerns of animal rights and the environment. She has stated that her artistic obligation is to bring light to animal cruelty and pollution. Johnson utilizes found objects from nature along with traditional materials for her assemblage work. Her primary interests lie in the metaphorical connections of nature, feminist concerns, and issues of identity.

Come celebrate The Taburasa Chapter of Lambda Sigma Upsilon Latino Fraternity, Inc. on Monday November 26th at 2 pm in the Seymour Union Main Lounge.

The Taburasa Chapter of Lambda Sigma Upsilon Latino Fraternity, Inc. chartered at The College at Brockport on Friday, November 16, 2018 when they initiated four men. These men have worked hard over the past year as a colony to complete the requirements by the national office and the college to become a chartered organization. This is the first new chartered organization since 1993 and the first Latino fraternity at The College at Brockport.
