Resolution on Methods for Initiating Departmental Review of Faculty for Promotion

Whereas current promotion practice insists that the individual faculty member request promotion, and

Whereas this system may diminish the numbers of eligible faculty being promoted, and

Whereas faculty ought to be rewarded by promotion when their service indicates that they have met the criteria for promotion, and

Whereas peer evaluation already provides a sound principle for review of faculty for promotion, be it therefore

Resolved that any departmental faculty member or the departmental promotion committee (or equivalent thereof) may nominate departmental members for promotion; and, be it further

Resolved that the departments' (or other administrative counterparts) administrative officers may also nominate faculty for promotion; and, be it

Resolved that all faculty applying or nominated for promotion must follow the promotion procedures approved by the department and the Faculty Senate, and said nominations are due to the appropriate APT Committee no later than the end of the fourth week of the fall semester.
