Proposed Revision

Interdisciplinary Major in Communication

JOURNALISM CONCENTRATION

The Concentration in Journalism prepares students for employment in newspaper, magazine and broadcast journalism; the wire services; advertising; public and community relations; social and community services agencies; corporate communications and government service.

Students pursuing the Concentration in Journalism, in addition to completing a minimum of 34 semester hours in journalism and journalism-related communication courses (including a liberal arts core of 15 semester hours and a minimum of 19 semester hours in one of three sequences: News-Editorial, Broadcast Journalism or Public Relations), must complete the requirements of one academic minor or second major. No more than 54 semester hours of Communication courses may be credited toward completion of the 120 semester hours required for graduation.

Admission to the Concentration in Journalism

Students should apply for admission to the Concentration in Journalism no ater than the first semester of their junior year. Students must have completed, with a grade of C or better, the following courses (or their approved transfer equivalents) prior to admission to the Concentration in Journalism: CMC 262, Introduction to Mass Communication (see Note 1) and CMC 224, Newswriting and Reporting.
