RE: Revisions of the Arts for Children Program

There is a slight revision in the requirements for Arts for Children major. The faculty of the Arts for Children Program has discussed and approved these changes after getting an input from the students.

There are four components to this program:

1. Two Arts for Children courses IAC 280 and IAC 491	6 credits	No change	6 credits
2. Courses in Specialty area	30 credits	Changed to	21 credits
3. Courses in other arts	9 credits	Changed to	18 credits
4. Electives	3 credits	No change	3 credits
Total: 48			48

The change is only in the second and third components: in the specialty area, 21 credits are required instead of 30, and in the other art areas, 18 credit hours are required instead of 9.

ARTS FOR CHILDREN- Interdisciplinary Major
Department of Interdisciplinary Arts
Chairperson: Sri Ram Bakshi, 1106D Tower Fine Arts Building
(716) 395-5262

Interdisciplinary Arts for Children Faculty: Sri Ram V. Bakshi, Oh-Kon Cho, Jacqueline Davis, William Hullfish, Irma Pylyshenko

The Department of Interdisciplinary Arts offers a bachelor's degree in Arts for Children, an interdisciplinary major, which can also be combined with certification in elementary education. In collaboration with the Department of Education and Human Development, a master's degree in Elementary Education with an interdisciplinary arts for children specialization is also offered. For more information about the graduate program, please refer to the graduate catalogue.

Arts for Children, which is recognized as a unique program in the SUNY, incorporates the knowledge and skills of art, dance, music, and theatre, with an in-depth study of one of these arts. The curriculum emphasizes philosophical and theoretical concepts of arts education, as well as the skills required for creative expression. The program serves diverse student population, who range widely in age, background, and needs. They are trained to work creatively with young children in a variety of situations, such as elementary schools, arts institutions, and community centers in rural and urban environments. These inspired and gifted students will be able to provide "absorbing, challenging, and even provocative" experience for children, who will be adept in the artistic uses of intelligence. The Arts for Children faculty promotes an approach to arts education that fosters aesthetic perception, creative endeavors, and the study of history and culture.

Interdisciplinary Arts for children majors are required to complete a 48-credit program consisting of: (1) two Interdisciplinary courses, IAC 280 Introduction to Related Arts for Children, and IAC 491 Seminar in Arts for Children; (2) A 21-credit core in one specialty: art, dance, music, or theatre.; (3) an 18-credit block consisting of two courses in each of the other three arts.; (4) One approved elective. A minimum grade of "C" must be attained in all required courses.

Students are urged to take advantage of Service Learning opportunities through voluntary work, and earn one extra credit while enrolled for IAC 280 and/or IAC 491. Students interested in an in-depth study of any of the arts are advised to pursue a major, minor, or take more courses in that discipline.
